THE BLACK PANTHERS
VANGUARD OF THE REVOLUTION

NOVA: Rise of the Robots
The Perfect Crime: American Experience
Nature: Raising the Dinosaur Giant
February is Black History Month, and we’re presenting several compelling new programs you won’t want to miss. The Black Panthers: Vanguard of the Revolution (Feb. 16), a film exploring the history of the Black Panthers, has been nominated for an NAACP Vision Award for Outstanding Documentary (Film). On KCTS9.org, we’ll be showcasing local stories about leaders of Seattle’s Black Panther movement.

Misty Copeland—the first African-American female principal dancer with American Ballet Theater—is the subject of Independent Lens’ A Ballerina’s Tale (Feb. 8). In the realm of politics, Bridging the Divide: Tom Bradley and the Politics of Race (Feb. 22) tells the story of the former police officer who became the first African-American mayor of Los Angeles. American Masters is profiling premieres of iconic bluesman B.B. King (Feb. 15) and Fats Domino, the New Orleans musician who aided integration through his music (Feb. 29).

Your support of KCTS 9 not only sustains the regular series you love, but enables us to bring you in-depth stories about people who have shaped the history, art, politics and music of our times. Thank you!

This month, the paper that we normally use for this viewer guide was temporarily unavailable. To ensure that you receive your guide on time, we asked our printer to use an in-stock alternative. We will return to our normal paper with the March issue. Thank you for your understanding!

Daniel Tiger

NEW EPISODES START

Independent Lens: A Ballerina’s Tale
Monday, 2/8, at 10:00 p.m.
Few dancers make it to the highest levels of classical ballet; of that already small number, only a fraction are black women. Misty Copeland pulled herself up the ladder at American Ballet Theater from studio-company to principal dancer, becoming arguably the biggest star in dance today.

Bridging the Divide: Tom Bradley and the Politics of Race
Monday, 2/22, at 9:00 p.m.
Thirty-five years before the election of President Obama, the possibility of bridging racial barriers in politics was put to the test with Tom Bradley’s 1973 election as mayor of Los Angeles. He became the first African-American mayor of a major U.S. city with a white majority. Bradley created a coalition to unite a divided city, bring inclusion and access, and set the foundation for future minority candidates nationwide.

2 pints blueberries (about 12 ounces) or mixed berries, fresh or frozen

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Butter or spray an 8-inch square baking dish.

In a medium bowl, or 8-cup glass measuring cup, stir together the milk, egg, applesauce, vanilla and sugar. Add the oats and cinnamon, and stir to combine. There may be a little liquid in the bowl; that will be absorbed during cooking.

Add about three-fourths of the oatmeal mixture to the baking dish, distributing evenly. Top with the berries, then top the berries with the remaining oatmeal mixture. Bake for 30 minutes, until the berries bubble and the top starts to brown.

Serve in bowls with a bit of milk or cream, and a drizzle of maple syrup on top. Delicious!
